Rec Center Receives Enthusiastic Student Endorsement

The most talked about facility at Saint Joseph's College is the new Hanson Recreation Center. Dedicated in October 1986, the 32,300 square foot building connects both with Raleigh Hall and the Fieldhouse and has become a main focus for student activity and interest.

It was predictable that the building would be received favorably by students, but the extent of its popularity was not anticipated. Neither was the extent of its use.

"It's been a much bigger happening than we ever expected," said Bill Hogan, athletic director. "The Fieldhouse simply wasn't adequate to accommodate the tremendous growth of our men's and women's varsity sports as well as the increasing participation in intramural sports. Our hope was for a facility of sufficient size and function to enable the nearly 90% of our students who participate in intramurals to be

Admissions Phenomenon Is Felt Nationwide

When Ken Rasp joined the college staff in July 1986, from the College of Mount St. Joseph, Cincinnati, his mandates were to develop and implement a comprehensive student recruitment plan and to direct and manage five recruitment professionals. With the drop in enrollment during the previous two years because of the declining pool of college-age students, the careful development of short-term and long-range marketing strategies became important considerations to the college's mission.

"We had a good year," Rasp said. "I think we will meet our goal of 275 freshmen plus a number of transfers." No one can be sure, though. Rasp and admission directors throughout the country admit to confusion and uncertainty. It has been an unusual year. While most had projected a further decline in the number of 18-year olds, colleges around the country were deluged with applications this year. Saint Joseph's applications are up by 200 from last year, actual deposits up by 40. The answer seems to lie, Rasp and his colleagues elsewhere suspect, in that students are shopping for colleges, some sending out as many as 20 applications. Most will accept the school that offers the most advantageous financial-aid package.

Rasp and his team have concentrated their efforts in the Indiana and Chicago areas and plan to step up their efforts in Ohio and Kentucky. "We've conducted a series of day and evening campus open houses, worked with alumni and alumni chapters, spent hours and days on telephone follow-ups, held area pizza parties to get prospective students to know one another before they ever arrive on campus, met with parents, conducted campus weekends for applicants to give them a feel for college life, walked them through the financial aid process and generally done everything we can to make applicants feel special to Saint Joseph's College."

Rasp has also worked closely with William Ihlantfeldt of Northwestern University who is SJC's admission consultant, commissioned by two members of the Board of Trustees. "He has been very helpful," Rasp said. "He helps me bounce ideas around and to focus on the areas on which to place major emphases. The dividends, if not immediate, will certainly be forthcoming down the road."

Students come to Saint Joseph's College for a variety of reasons, according to Rasp. The Core program appeals to parents more than to young people who, generally speaking, don't understand it and normally don't recognize its value until their last two years, and sometimes not until they have graduated. SJC's location is both a positive and a negative. Those young people who want a large community environment are not likely to come to the college. But those who want to make study a high priority, who search for closeness in a friendly college atmosphere, who want to make lasting friendships, who desire personalized attention, and who enjoy sports as well as academics, those students will feel at home at SJC. Most students also come because they believe SJC will better prepare them for a productive career.

ACT-SAT averages among incoming students will be higher than last year's and the freshman class should do very well academically, Rasp said.

"I feel good about the year here. We've done a lot that I think will be successful. The things we did that were less so, we won't repeat. We can change and adapt and switch gears. We want to be creative and imaginative."

In the final analysis, the enrollment picture — given the nationwide trend in multiple applications — will not be clear until SJC opens its door for registration on August 24. Indeed, such uncertainty may be the trend for several years to come.

Recruiting, however, is not just a matter for the director and his staff. To make it successful, Rasp stresses, everyone must get involved — faculty, administration, current students, parents, and SJC graduates. Therefore, Rasp asks the help of interested alumni. If they know of anyone who might make a good Puma, would they contact Steve O'Connell at 219-866-7111, ext. 170.

Dormitories Get Facelift

Energy saving improvements were undertaken this summer to control dormitory temperatures more precisely and to reduce heat loss in cold weather months. Thermostatic valves and traps were installed on radiators in Merlini and Seifert halls, pre-set to maintain 72 degree temperatures.

Gallagher and Halas halls' new windows are intended to eliminate drafts and reduce heat loss. This project was funded by a 3% loan from the U.S. Department of Education.

Other improvements include new lounge carpeting and a face-lift for Merlini Hall, a new roof and major plumbing repairs for Gallagher, and Halas Hall received a new air conditioning cooling tower, new hallway carpeting, and a new roof. East Seifert Hall's ground floor is being adapted to provide 26 spaces for handicapped students and a wheelchair ramp at the south entrance of Seifert Hall's east wing.

Various other dormitories are scheduled for similar renovation and beautification in spring 1988. The library is scheduled for renovation in the summer of next year.

All the work except for roof and window replacement and carpet installation is done by campus personnel.

Father Paul White

White Named Alumni Director

Father Paul White has been named Director of Alumni Affairs replacing Douglas Drake who has assumed a position at Holy Family College, Philadelphia.

Father White, associate professor of economics, joined the SJC faculty in 1953. He was college business manager and served as executive vice president from 1965 to 1975. In 1982, he was named director of the college's first capital campaign at which completion, he resumed his teaching duties in economics.

He did graduate work in economics at the Catholic University of America (Washington, D.C.), received an MA degree in 1956, and spent two years of study in industrial and labor relations at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY.

He was born in Glandorf, Ohio in 1926, and began his studies for the priesthood in 1944, completing his college and theological studies at SJC and at Saint Charles Seminary in Carthagen, OH.

His great popularity among alumni will make him a most effective director of Alumni Affairs. "I hope to strengthen college-alumni ties by attempting to effect greater alumni involvement in college activities and affairs," he said. "I hope to organize alumni weekends on campus, organize chapters in areas where none exist so far if the concentration of alumni warrants, continue to improve the class agent system, and otherwise stay in close communication with our alumni constituency. I am excited by the prospect of renewing old friendships and making new ones and by the prospect of working with the Alumni Association for a common college goal."

able to play at times other than early in the morning or late at night."

In putting the building to use, students showed not only interest, but creativity. "Originally we thought in terms of basketball, badminton, volleyball and tennis," Hogan said. "The students, though, added soccer, kickball, whiffle ball, aerobics, wrestling and team handball. We just didn't anticipate the reception this facility would receive from students."

The Center has had other ramifications as well, according to Hogan. For example, coaches here for the summer basketball camps have been lavish in their praise of the facility. Bill Cronauer, one of the principals in the BC summer camps, said the addition of the Center will make the Saint Joseph's basketball camp one of the finest in the country.

John Barrientos, tennis coach and the building's director, said the anticipated down time from 7:00 a.m. till noon just didn't happen. "It's occupied and in use virtually every minute it is open."

The facility features three full size (90' by 50') playing courts with a rigging system that divides the court space to allow various events to take place simultaneously. The entire playing area is encompassed by a 10-foot jogging/running track. Facilities for indoor baseball and softball practice are incorporated in the structure.

Although designed to accommodate the intramural programs, one of the important side benefits of the facility is the opportunity it provides the entire college community for exercise and physical fitness.

John Freiburger, president of the 1987 graduating class, in a letter to the editor of Stuff wrote: "On any given night you can see all types of Pumas running, aerobicing, walking, jogging, and playing sports such as tennis, soccer, football, and volleyball. Every day Pumas of all ages and sizes are seen leaving the Center covered with sweat, the day's frustrations relieved, clear minds restored and smiles on their faces. I would like to take this opportunity to publicly applaud the entire Saint Joe community for one hell of a job well done."

20 Years Of "Top Stories" Record SJC History

Two $500,000 gifts from Saint Joseph's College alumni, one to support completion of the school's new recreation center and the other to establish a student scholarship, have been cited as the college's story-of-the-year for 1986-87. Both gifts, the first by Richard Hanson '63 (cf article), the second by Thomas Huhn '59, president and chief operating officer of The Alexander Proudfoot Worldwide Family of Companies, to endow the Thomas J. Huhn Athletic-Leadership Scholarship have enjoyed considerable publicity both in Contact and in other state and national publications. The purpose of the Thomas J. Huhn scholarship is to encourage talented and qualified student athletes to pursue full-time academic studies at Saint Joseph's College. Its first recipient is Greg Gehl, a 1987 graduate of Fort Wayne Bishop Dwenger High School.

Previous Saint Joseph's stories-of-the-year have been:

Honor Society Installs First SJC Members

Eight students and five faculty members have been installed in a new chapter of the Phi Alpha Theta Honor Society in History.

Charter member students include Marty Carroll '87 (Bowie, MD), Judy Dever '89 (Indianapolis), Tim Lax '87 (Rensselaer), Ted Meneice '87 (Crown Point, IN), Kevin Quinn '88 (Highland, IN), Mike Robinson '89 (Fort Wayne, IN), Mary Ryan '87 (Merrillville, IN), and Therese Yanan '87 (North Wales, PA).

Charter members from the faculty are Father Dominic Gerlach, associate professor of history and German; Dr. David Osterfeld, associate professor of political science; Dr. Phil Posey, professor of history; Dr. Mary Margaret Smith, associate professor of

The installation ceremony was conducted by Phi Alpha Theta national councilor Dr. Oakah Jones of Purdue University and Dr. Posey. Founded in 1921, Phi Alpha Theta has 650 chapters in the United States and several foreign countries. Its purpose is to promote excellence in the study of history, which it accomplishes through promoting student activities and the awarding of scholarships.

To become a member of the honor society, a student must have an overall grade point average of 3.0 or better on a 4.0 scale or at least a 3.1 GPA in history courses.

faculty scholar award is given occasionally to a member of the faculty in recognition of his outstanding scholarly achievements. Father Kramer has been on the faculty since 1953 and is the author of the recently published book, Evolution and Creation: A Catholic Understanding.

Dr. John Nichols, vice president for academic affairs, was appointed adviser to the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Educational Research and Improvement. OERI supports and conducts research on education, collects and analyzes education statistics, administers grant and contract programs to improve libraries and library education, and disseminates information to parents, students, teachers, school administrators, policymakers, researchers, the media and others. Dr. Nichols, who also serves as coordinator of SJC's nationally acclaimed Core general education program, joined the SJC faculty in 1968.

Coaches: Appointed And Promoted

Brian D. Rock, part-time assistant coach at Bowling Green (Ohio) State University from 1986 to 1987, joined the staff at SJC as assistant football coach and defensive coordinator.

Rock earned football, basketball and tennis monograms at Bowling Green Senior High School, where he was an all-Northern Lakes League selection in football and tennis.

He was boys' eighth-grade football coach and ninth-grade line coach for Bowling Green Junior High School and receivers' coach at Bowling Green Senior High School in 1983-84.

He earned a bachelor's degree in education in 1985 and master's degree in sports management in 1986 from Bowling Green. Rock replaces Jim Blake who resigned to accept a position on the football staff at Lakeland College in Sheboygan, WI.

Linda Deno, assistant coach since 1984, was named head volleyball coach to succeed Linda Taulman.

Deno is a native of Goodland and a 1982 SJC graduate. During 1982-84, she was a part-time coach at Tri-County High School where she assisted the varsity volleyball and women's basketball teams and the junior high track squad.

Puma Personalities

David Chesak, professor of mathematics and physics, completed his second summer Faculty Research Associateship at the Naval Aerospace Medical Research Laboratory in Pensacola, FL. Chesak assisted in measurements of radiation and temperature changes on dummies that have the same absorption characteristics as the human body.

G. Robert Kasky '61, assistant professor of accounting, recently completed a one-year term as chairman of the Indiana Society of Certified Public Accountants, Committee on Relations with Colleges. The committee seeks to foster closer relations between practicing certified CPAs and accounting educators and to promote the accounting major in colleges. Kasky earned his master's degree from Indiana University in 1963 and his CPA from Illinois in 1964. He joined the SJC faculty in 1966.

Remembrances of Homecomings Past . . .

While the Alumni Association traces its history back to 1896, the first Homecoming was held in 1919. It was then called Alumni Day and celebrated on the Feast of Saint Joseph. The featured event was a baseball game between the alumni and a representative student team.

The second Homecoming in 1920 was described in the college paper as follows: "Alumni Day will long be remembered as the outstanding feature of the school year. The alumni attended in force, their baseball team played ours, and, finally, the Turners topped off the day with a snappy, sparkling exhibition of gymnastics. Never did enthusiasm rise to a higher pitch or Saint Joseph's prove itself a better entertainer than on this Alumni Day."

Alumni Day on May 10, 1933, was memorable for the weather. One of the heaviest thunderstorms recorded hit the campus that morning and seven ducks were seen swimming on the baseball diamond just hours before the game. Students pitched in to ready the diamond, the game was played and spirits remained undaunted. This was a situation which would repeat itself at the 1986 Homecoming.

In 1937, the spring event was moved to fall which explains why the first Homecoming football game was played that year.

The first Homecoming parade was organized in 1950 with 12 colorful floats and seven marching bands. In 1978, the alumni association organized the first class reunion, and in 1985, the class of 1960 became the first class to present the college with a 25th anniversary class gift.

Fall homecomings centered around football games and two eras in SJC's colorful history stand out. The early 1940s and the late 1950s were the glory years for the Pumas.

The 1941 and 1942 football teams went undefeated against the likes of Indiana State, Butler and Valparaiso. Bob Shields '44, a member of the Puma "wall" which allowed only five touchdowns for the entire '42 season, remembers the Homecoming game that year against Illinois Wesleyan as a breather in which the bench played the majority of the game.

These years were known as the Dienhart era. Joe Dienhart was appointed head football coach in 1938 and athletic director in 1941. A Notre Dame graduate, Dienhart played with the four horsemen under Knute Rockne.

Shields remembers the 3-0 upset of the University of Toledo in 1942 as one of the greatest games in Puma history. "They were a nationally ranked powerhouse and this was supposed to be a warmup game for them," he recalls.

The football program went to war with Lucky Strike Green, and it wasn't until more than a decade later that Saint Joe was once again to experience it's day in the sun. Under head coach Robert Jauron, the Pumas made a shambles of the record book, stampeding all six Indiana Collegiate conference foes on their way to becoming 1957 NAIA co-champions. That year the Pumas whipped Indiana State University 59-13. But Homecoming was remembered more for the dance than the lopsided score. More than 300 couples danced to the music of Bobby Christian and, as another first, a homecoming queen was crowned for the first time.

Tom Huhn '59, a member of the impenetrable wall which limited opponents to an average of 109 yards per game, remembers beating Ball State 66-0 in 1957.

There was in 1962 the Homecoming 6-0 upset of undefeated Butler, played on a rain swept field.

One of the most exciting Homecoming games ever was the 1963 victory over De Pauw. Senior Ron Boguski booted a 40-yard field goal in the final four seconds to beat the Tigers 9-6. Earlier his 52 yard kick tied the score and a national record.

George Badke joined Boguski in the top rank of Homecoming heroes when he intercepted a pass and ran for the winning touchdown in the last moments of the game to give the Pumas a 13-6 win over ISU in 1966.

When SJC officially turned coeducational in 1968, Homecoming began to take on a new dimension. For the 1969 Homecoming, Bobby Vinton was on campus to highlight activities. That year marked the first annual Homecoming parade through the streets of Rensselaer and the team lost a heartbreaker to arch rival Valpo.

February 4, 1973, will forever be remembered as the year the Administration Building burned, the college thereby losing its principal facility. SJC students captured national attention and the hearts of people everywhere as they frantically worked to carry files and records, books and furniture out of the blazing building. Homecoming was a nostalgic event that year. Homecoming 1986 again brought out the best in the Saint Joe community as it once again rose to the challenge. The field flooded, determined students, players and non-players alike pitched in, and the game was moved to Brookside Park in Rensselaer. Sports Illustrated took note: "Who ever said that school spirit was dead?" the article about the Pumas asked. The fact that the team lost against Butler was not an issue.

The past is prologue. SJC is about to celebrate Homecoming 1987. That story is yet to be written. But one thing is certain: the SJC Puma spirit will be alive and well.

Hogan's Goal: To Be Competitive

Dr. William Hogan, athletic director at Saint Joseph's College, wears a number of hats. He is a teaching faculty member of the business department and head basketball coach. In addition, he is one of the college's most successful student recruiters.

Hogan was co-captain of the 1972-73 basketball team, the last team to capture a Division II regional championship. Following his graduation in 1974, Hogan coached baseball and basketball in Ohio for three years. In 1978, he went to Bowling Green University as an assistant to what had been his Saint Joe coach, John Weinert. While there, he completed work on his master's degree and Ph.D.

He returned to Saint Joe in 1981 as a full-time business teacher and business manager of the Athletic Department while at the same time serving as assistant basketball coach. In 1982, he was appointed athletic director, and in 1984, he became head basketball coach.

During his three years as head coach, the basketball team has averaged 18 wins a season including Puerto Rico's pre-season games. Three starters from last year return for the 1987-88 season. "Our goal this year, as it was last, is to be competitive in every game we play," Hogan said.

The development of 6-7 Junior, Chris Brown, a reserve forward, and the addition of Lowell Harper, a 6-4½ guard forward from Benedictine High School in Detroit, will determine whether Saint Joe is a contender for the conference championship this year, according to Hogan. "Brown is probably our best athlete, and Harper gives us the quickness up front that we lacked last season."

"The Great Lakes Valley Conference is far and away the best Division II basketball conference in the country," he said. "If you win the conference, you stand a good chance of winning the national championship."

Hogan is also pleased with the progress the football team has made during the past two years under coach Bill Reagan who, like Hogan, is a 1974 Saint Joe graduate and last year lead the Puma's to a winning season.

Although winning and being competitive is important, academics and career preparation come first. "Our real goal is to have every one of our athletes graduate. "We recruit with this in mind. For example, three of our recruits this year are members of the National Honor Society."

"We don't try to sell kids a bill of goods when we recruit," he said. "Most of us can speak first hand about what the college did for us. When I was a kid, coming to Saint Joe was one of the good decisions I made."

"Construction of the Hanson Recreation Center was an important development at the college," Hogan said. "It was absolutely critical to our recruitment efforts. It also reflects the confidence the Saint Joe community has in the future of the college."

Alumni Profile: Rich Hanson '63

John Stitz

Alumni Profile:

John Stitz '87

John Stitz, SJC's 1987 graduate and baseball standout, was recently notified that the Cleveland Indians had chosen him in the annual major league draft.

Stitz, who completed an impressive career for the Pumas in May, reported June 20 to Burlington, NC, where he and other prospects were evaluated by Indians' personnel and subsequently assigned to Cleveland minor-league teams.

Stitz says his selection in the draft was based on his performance May 30 during a tryout camp at St. Xavier College, Chicago.

"I initially went to the camp as a first baseman, but when we were throwing the ball around the infield, one of my throws was clocked at 87 miles per hour," he said. "Cleveland scout Tom Couston suggested that I should be tested as a pitcher, and later that day I threw from the mound at 91 miles per hour."

"Couston said I had a strong arm, that he was impressed with my throwing speed, and told me at the end of the tryout that there was a good chance the Indians would draft me."

Stitz led Puma regulars this spring with a .362 batting average, 54 hits, 39 runs batted in and 78 total bases. On the mound, he also led the Pumas with five wins, 11 games started and seven completed games. He registered a 2.91 earned run average and struck out 46 hitters while walking 14.

Stitz left Saint Joseph's with 147 career hits, an all-time Puma record, and he becomes the second baseball player in recent Puma history to be drafted by a major league team. Dave Ruhe, a first baseman during the late 1960s and early 70s also was drafted.

Stitz was one of the college's two-sport athletes, a four-year basketball letterman who ranks as the 10th leading scorer in Puma history with 1294 points. Cleveland's Class A team is located in Kinston, NC, the AA team in Williamsport, PA and the Indians' AAA squad in Buffalo, NY. "I wouldn't be unhappy if I'm assigned to Kinston," Stitz said. "I don't want to get in over my head too fast. I'd like to start out at an appropriate level, then try to work my way up."

The name Rich Hanson means different things to different people. To the current students at Saint Joseph's College, he is a hero. The recreation center, which opened last fall and means so much to them, bears the Hanson name. Rich made the Center possible by pledging the first $500,000 and spearheading the effort to raise the remaining funds for the $1.9 million structure.

To alumni he is known as a major benefactor to the college and as a fellow alum who distinguished the college through his illustrious business career.

To Chicagoans he is president of Stein & Company, one of the largest developers of office complexes in the Midwest. Among numerous projects, the company is building the prestigious $600 million AT & T Corporate Towers in Chicago. Hanson joined the firm in 1984 after spending 21 years with Coopers & Lybrand where he was chairman of the corporation's National Real Estate Group.

To classmates and friends he is a special person. Hank Murphy '60 worked with Hanson at a grocery store during their high school years. Murphy, realizing Hanson's potential, encouraged him to attend college and brought him to Saint Joseph's. "I wouldn't have gone to college if I hadn't come to Saint Joe. No other school appealed to me, and I applied only to it," he recalls.

Jim Madden '64 remembers Hanson as a teammate on the SJC bowling team which achieved national recognition. Interest in and involvement with Saint Joe has kept them friends over the years. "If I told all I know on Rich, we'd both be in trouble," Madden said. "Rich is a very talented individual with the tenacity and determination to accomplish anything he sets out to do. The thing I like most about him is that, despite his successes, he is still pretty much the same guy I knew in college. It's a quality of unpretentiousness that by and large is typical of Pumas."

Phil Wilhelm '63 remembers Hanson as a classmate who was a nice guy. "We respected him because he worked full time as he was going to school and made good grades as well." This respect has grown to admiration. "I really don't know what we would have done if Rich hadn't made this commitment to the recreation center," Wilhelm said.

Hanson's commitment to SJC can be traced to what he feels the college did for him. "I really owe the college a great deal and there comes a time when you have to pay back some of what you owe," he explains.

Hanson believes that Saint Joe is important to a whole segment of American people who, like himself, have no historic ties to higher education and who appreciate the family atmosphere of such an institution. "Teachers and staff really care about students," he says. "Saint Joe understood and accepted me for who I was."

Hanson emphasizes the need for alumni to support Saint Joe financially. "The college needs to be sustained and nurtured as an institution that provides an outstanding education to new generations of students. The generations of past students should be enthusiastic about supporting it as a resource for the future."

The wording on the plaque in the entrance way to the recreation center probably says more about Rich Hanson than anything else: "This building is dedicated to Carl Arthur and Ellen Feebery Hanson and all the other parents whose sacrifice made it possible for their sons and daughters to attend Saint Joseph's College."
